-Major A. W. Willis, of the Nashville executive military committee, received the following communication on Tuesday last: MEMPHIS, April 11, 1881.

A. W. Wills:

DEAR SIE—Please be kind enough to inform me the very latest possible date on which a company can enter for the drill on the 24th, 25th and 25th st May. Rule No. 13 of your circular gives May 1st, but as there is no apparent necessity for this I should think you could relax it. Yours truly, Commanding Bluff City Grays.

Major Willis informed a Herald reporter that the probability is the time will be exthat the probability is the time will be ex-tended to May 10th.

The new assignment law will be in force in twenty days after its passage and will do away with the preference in this State of one creditor over another in general assignments. It is an important law and pre-eminently a just one, as it makes all men share alike, which no honest man ought to object to. which no honest man ought to object to. Laws similar to this are now, and have been or years, in effect in two-thirds of the Union. A man of average character could, prior to this enactment, with a small amount of money buy a large stock of goods on credit, take them home, and, before the maturity of his account, make an assignment and prefer some relation or friend for a pretended claim, and thus absorb all, and leave nothing for the bona fide creditor.

—At the county court yesterday the county workhouse lessees at Presidents Island peti-tioned for a credit of $1000 on their contract to pay to the county $1000 annually. The lessees alleged that some time last year—in November—the prisoners were taken from Presidents Island workhouse, on the order of Judge Horrigan, of the criminal court, pend-ing the investigation of charges of cruel and inhuman conduct to prisoners by the employes on the island, by which withdrawal of the prisoners the lessees claim they were damaged several thousand dollars, but they were willing to compromise if the $1000 offset was allowed. The county court refused to allow the offset. Attorney-General Turner appeared before the county court, and made an argument against the proposed compromise.
